Mosaic Liberal Yom Kippur appeal

From Brigitte Levin – Chair of ML Charities Committee

Mosaic Liberal Synagogue raised a total of £9,787 from the 2017 Yom Kippur Appeal. Five charities have been the beneficiaries of the bulk of the money: The Religious Union for Progressive Jewish Communities in the Ukraine, EcoPeace-Middle East, The Karen Morris Memorial Trust, The Leo Baeck Centre in Haifa and the Brent Centre for Young people. As last year, donors' personal preferences were taken into account when allocating donations to each charity. Thank you so much to all contributors for their generosity.

Israel at 70

Blue and White Kiddush in commemoration of the 70th anniversary of the founding of the State of Israel. All three synagogues services were held at Bessborough Road on 14th April. The services were followed by a very enjoyable shared Kiddush/lunch and discussion and children's activities (picture by FDS).

ALONE IN BERLIN
(2016)

8:00pm on Tuesday
29th May

A young German soldier is killed in action during the French campaign. His parents, Otto (Brendan Gleeson) and Anna (Emma Thompson), are devastated by the loss. In their minds, Hitler and the Nazi regime are responsible for this tragedy, and much more, and Otto cannot passively stand by any longer. Otto starts a pamphlet campaign condemning Hitler and the War for useless waste of life, children, soldiers, Jews and Romanies. Anna, also soon throws herself into the campaign. Initially the Gestapo is merely embarrassed by the appearance of these pamphlets, but soon it becomes apparent that something has to be done to stamp out the distribution and find and punish the perpetrators. Daniel Bruhl plays the Gestapo Officer tasked with stopping the distribution.

'Less Shouting More Co-operation'
An enlightening talk & discussion on Parenting –
Sunday 24th June at 10:00 am

We are happy to invite Rosalie Ejzensztejn to run a session for Parents and Grandparents.

Come along and enjoy light refreshments and open discussion guided by her expertise.

Rosalie used to manage the London 24 hour helplines at Parentline, the UK's largest parenting charity, for 10 years and is Senior Consultant for Calmer Easier Happier Parenting.

The skills she teaches are respectful, friendly and somewhat counter intuitive but put parents and grandparents back in charge, supporting children to be more cooperative, considerate and confident.

She will explain the skills for parents to have a practical tool kit so instead of resorting to repeating, reminding, nagging and eventual shouting (the children or you) you will actually find that home life becomes less stressful and far more enjoyable for all the family.

PLEASE JOIN US AND LET THE OFFICE KNOW IF YOU WILL ATTEND.

REVIEW OF PAST EVENTS

Two accounts of A visit to National Holocaust Centre by Joan Noble & Philip Silvertown

Joan Noble writes: I was one of a group from Mosaic who visited Beth Shalom on Yom Hashoah on 11th April.

It was a grey, misty, eerie day that we travelled up early to Nottingham and that felt strangely appropriate.

I had visited many years ago when it started as the first and only official British Museum commemorating the Holocaust. My first visit was with Holocaust Survivors from the Centre in Hendon where I worked. Many people were initially sceptical as to what was the motive of this Christian family to set up such a place. It soon became clear that this unique family were clearly dedicated to Education and teaching about hatred and Genocide in the best possible way and one that has now educated thousands of children and teachers during the past 23 years. (A UK Museum is planned to be built next to The Houses of Parliament.)

A walk-through exhibition is a series of rooms with guided explanation taking a journey to show young children what it was like to grow up in the 1930's through the eyes of a young child – Leo aged 10 – who records his experiences through a diary.

We were taken from room to room with audio-visual examples that showed the build-up of Nazism that led to Leo being sent to Britain on the Kindertransport along with 10,000 other children before 1939.

In a separate Museum they document other historical facts, maps, life in the ghettos and camps that occurred. We heard the testimony of 89 year-old Survivor – Ruth David –who told her family life story from a small village to her journey to Britain on the Kindertransport.

REVIEW OF PAST EVENTS

Ruth David, who talked very movingly to the group. Ruth was born in 1929 and was on the Kindertransport in June 1939. Her siblings survived, but their parents were both murdered in Auschwitz.

For me this is also personal – marking the memorial for three grandparents whom I never knew, who were murdered. A while back, people were invited to plant a rose in their memory and this continues to be done in the peaceful neatly laid out rose gardens. I found the rose and a plaque for my three grandparents, Elfriede and Alex Katz taken to Auschwitz and murdered, and Johanna Katz who was never heard of again after deportation to Riga. Their story is in a book Beth Shalom has called Behind the Rose and families like mine have told their story.

Marina Smith, mother of Stephen and James (founders of the Centre) is still active and gave us a very warm welcome. Previously I remembered she greeted each Survivor with a hug and a kiss on arrival and she has always taken an interest in them personally and sent greeting cards for Rosh Hashanah, etc. A very kind and special lady who is still interested in many of the survivors of the Holocaust, who over the years have visited and spoken there to groups. It was a privilege to meet her again.

Stephen Smith is Director of The Shoah Foundation in California and James Smith is active in The Aegis Trust they set up dealing with genocide. They continue to do their very focused work on injustice in the world and I am pleased to know they have been recognised here and abroad for this sterling work.

Before leaving, we made a donation on behalf of our member Suzanne Levy z'l who was one of our Mosaic HMD facilitators who passed away recently.

Philip Silvertown writes: Beth Shalom is a Holocaust memorial centre near Laxton in Nottinghamshire. Opened in 1995, it is England's only Holocaust museum. The centre was founded by brothers James and Stephen Smith following a 1991 visit to Israel during which a trip to Yad Vashem changed the way they looked at history and the Holocaust as well as the devout Christian influence of their mother, Marina.

The museum seeks to educate primary school children about the Holocaust through its primary exhibit on children's experiences, funded in part by a lottery grant of nearly £500,000. Prince Harry was educated about the Holocaust at the Centre following an incident when he wore a Nazi costume.

The visit by members (and others) from The Mosaic Community on Yom Hashoah (11th April) was organised by Jane Prentice and subsidised by the Sidney Fenton Education Foundation. It was a unique opportunity for our community to see how the English establishment has accepted their responsibility to teach, through the >> children, about the actions and propaganda strategies used against the Jewish community in Germany from the time of the post-WW1 depression.

The session where we heard Ruth David talk about her experiences as a child in the era concerned bore immediate and heartfelt witness to the overall theme of the centre.

As a vehicle for engaging children in personal reflections of how it would affect them (using the story of one child's experience) it was appropriate at the Primary school level. As this was the aim of the founders of the centre, it is successful. To most of our group it missed the chance to 'open the gates' to the teachers and parents who would accompany the children and challenge them to look deeper into horrors of the Holocaust in other ways, using the many and accessible sources.

Without the funding and political power of the USA, there would be no chance of creating a centre on the level of the National Holocaust Museum in Washington DC. That venue follows the story of particular people in a small rural community through the period with one of the 'characters' actually working at the museum on the day Judy and I visited there. That museum gives the widest demographic group the ability to take up the story at their age related or interest related level.

On the whole, the day was successful in understanding the ways that others might choose to represent and record events (with British children as the target group) but I am bound to think that this was underestimating the level that young people are able to engage with the topic. Thanks to Jane Prentice for organising this event.

WHAT WE HAVE BEEN DOING

Report of the first session of the Mosaic Men's Cooking Club

by Richard Freedman

Five of us attended the first Men's Cooking Club session – 'Different ways with eggs'. When asked by Joan, we all confirmed that our culinary expertise probably extended no further than boiling, scrambling, frying and possibly producing an omelette!

Joan led us through egg anatomy, checking for freshness and the alternative methods of basic egg cookery, most of which was new to me and very useful. We then entered the kitchen (with some trepidation on my part) and were split into two groups for our first foray into hands-on cooking.

After scrambling, poaching and frying and preparing an omelette using different methods, the groups then followed recipes for spinach and pea frittata and shakshuka. I think it is fair to say that we were all pleasantly surprised by both the appearance and flavour of the finished dishes, which we then sampled. We were given 'take-home parcels' of our work for second opinions.

Of course, the outcome may have been very different but for Joan's expert guidance at every stage, ably assisted by Gay. Joan encouraged us all to try new ways of preparing and presenting food, using all available print and online resources.

We all thoroughly enjoyed the session and look forward to learning about the world of soups and salads in two weeks' time.

Additional attendees are always welcome.

Mounds of macaroons for Pesach

by Judy Silverton

Volunteers Claudia Rose, Viv Levinson, Jeanette Leibling, Pat Zatz and Hana Shlesinger joined Judy Silverton in the Annual Pesach Bake in on Tuesday 27th March.

Between them they made approximately 240 almond macaroons, 180 Cinnamon balls and about 150 coconut pyramids to be eaten at the Communal Seder, kiddushim and any events that happened to fall during Pesach week.

We used approximately 3 dozen eggs, kilos of almonds and the Synagogue kitchen smelled wonderful. Anyone who popped in from the office and those preparing the communal Seder all managed to help 'taste' them – all for quality control of course! So much nicer than 'bought' biscuits.

Many thanks to all those involved for giving up their time.

WHAT WE HAVE BEEN DOING

Multi-faith visit to Northern India

by Rabbi Dr. Frank Dabba Smith

During March 2018, Rabbi Dr Frank Dabba Smith led a multifaith group to northern India. The participants included Mosaic Liberal Synagogue members, Mark and Lindsey Bennister.

One of the first religious sites visited was the Judah Hyam Synagogue in Delhi (see picture). Our host was Ezekiel Isaac Malekar, the General-Secretary of the community, and we enjoyed a tour plus lengthy conversation.

The character of the community may be described as progressive as women are equal when it comes to participating in services and ritual, non-Jewish partners are fully welcomed and there are very strong ties of cooperation and friendship with members of other faith communities, including Muslims. Unfortunately, the size of the Jewish community is very small, and most attendees are ex-pats. As Ezekiel asks poignantly, "Will there be anyone left who will volunteer for my role after I retire?"

WHAT WE HAVE BEEN DOING

What Price for Justice By Rabbi Dr. Frank Dabba Smith

Ruth Barnett, Kindertransport refugee, psychotherapist and Mosaic Liberal Synagogue member offered her views about 'justice' through her recently written play, 'What Price for Justice?', concerning the history of her family during and after the Shoah. We read extracts of Ruth's very moving play together (see picture) and learned about the traumas that survivors and refugees faced after the Shoah in Germany as they attempted (without success) to reunite surviving family members and reclaim lost careers. There was still much hatred against Jews. The legal profession, for example, was dominated by personnel who functioned during the Nazi period.

Ruth's play will be performed by RADS (Reformed Allerton Drama Society) in Liverpool from 9th-12th May. If interested in attending, please email Ruth Barnett at rutheclb@gmail.com

Total Eclipse – an Astronomical Accident

By Fred Stern

MR member, Fred Stern was born in Vienna in 1923 and arrived in Britain on the Kindertransport.

Last year, precisely on 21st August 2017, we saw the phenomenon of a total eclipse of the sun, as the Pesach Kehila reminds us (Greg Wand's article on p 17 of that issue). As I believe the earth has existed for 4.543 billion years and humans appeared about 200,000 years ago, there would have been tens of thousands of similar occurrences, just like global warming. What has never been mentioned, is that eclipses would not have occurred, had the moon's orbit been even a slight amount different from its path around the earth and moreover had the earth's orbit also been slightly different from its actual path around the sun.

When the big bang occurred, as I believe it did, the universe was splattered with a huge number of individual bodies. There would have been many of them in the vicinity of the earth, and similarly, many bodies around the sun. Their paths, inclinations and speeds around the earth and sun respectively, would not have ensured continuous movements of all those bodies in constant orbits. The moon and the earth, however, are the only bodies which move in constant paths. That these paths have existed for all that time, is due to the fact that they have not been disturbed by other bodies.

I contend that to ascribe these coincidences to a superior power of creation is entirely absurd.

For the rabbis to ascertain that the eclipse gives opportunities for increasing prayer and introspection, is far-fetched to the n^{th} degree. It is however, interesting, that the earliest solar eclipse has been recorded. Astronomers believe that this was on 30th October, 1207 BCE. The given explanation of the coincident would have been appropriate at that time.

Whoever wants to pray at any time does not need the opportunity of a total eclipse. Moreover, all the evils that have beset this world since that historic time and before, have not been prevented by prayer and I maintain they never will be. Nor do I need to light a candle to remind me of my personal losses and the ongoing anti-Semitism in my own lifetime, for which there are no appropriate adjectives. They constitute a total eclipse.

From the foregoing, it is obvious that we are an astronomical accident and are far from having had to happen. Were this not so and had we been created for a purpose, I think it is obvious that the purpose has not been achieved. Would you create a card house, only to destroy it? Admittedly, our own creations have brought us from obscurity to this juncture and they have given us enormous benefits, yet they are double-edged - some do good and some do evil. We are thankful for one and frightened of the other. The choice is not necessarily ours. I believe that I am on this earth to add value and feel, at 94, to have succeeded to the best of my ability.

Thank you from the Reubens

To/

Rabbi Kathleen Middleton
and Mosaic Reform Synagogue

Dear Rabbi

We wish to thank you most sincerely for the blessing you kindly gave us on Shabbat 24th March when we celebrated our Diamond Wedding. This was indeed greatly appreciated by us. Also our thanks go to Stefan Roos for being so helpful and understanding. You gave us a day we shall never forget.

We appreciate that many people are involved and therefore we would like to convey our thanks to Ann Simon, the Choir, the cheerful Kiddush team, security and the caretaker. Together they all contributed to make this event so memorable.

Once again we realise how lucky we are to belong to such a caring community and send our best wishes to all at Mosaic.

Sincerely

Lily & Lionel Reubens
